PROJECT NO. 123

"Convent, Sisters of St. Joseph."

The front portion of this building was erected in the year 1841 and the rear section was added about ten years later.

The building is used as a novitiate for the religious order (St. Joseph) and is also used as a School for Girls. The Sisters of St. Joseph is the largest teaching Order in the City of St. Louis.

The Order recently celebrated its Centennial in the City of St. Louis.

The three story brick and stone building was planned and supervised by Mother Celestine.

The Rev. Mother Agnes Ryan is now in charge of the Convent.

Information received from The Sacred Heart Messenger.

EUGENE L. PLEITSCH.
